Part One

JOKES

HUMANS ARE THE ONLY CREATURES on this planet who laugh. Oh sure, hyenas make a funny bark that may sound like a laugh. Grade B movies and sitcoms show chimpanzees and dolphins laughing at their silly human costars. But people are the only animals that giggle, chuckle, titter, guffaw, belly laugh, chortle, and yuck. Have you ever known a hamster who snickers at an elephant joke? Or a Rottweiler who appreciates a well-thrown custard pie in his face? Didn't think so.

Besides loving to laugh, we also like making other people laugh. Who hasn't enjoyed being the center of attention, even if only for a few seconds, after you've told a truly terrific joke? Well, this book has tons of them — jokes, howlers, groaners, puns, witty retorts, and practical gags.

One more thing. This book is not to be read in the silence of your bedroom or favorite hiding place. Carry it with you at all times, read it out loud, underline the best parts, dog-ear the pages, share the jokes with all your friends.

Read, laugh, and be more funny!

MONSTER MANIA

What kind of dog does Dracula have as a pet?
A bloodhound.

What is the Mummy's favorite music?

WHAT'S GNU?

Mona: I had trouble with my horse yesterday. I wanted to go in one direction, and he wanted to go in another.

Sam: So how did you decide?

Mona: He tossed me for it.

Sam: I think my pet duck is broken.

Jokin' Around

Fowl Definitions

From the Dictionary for Bird-Brains

Hatchet — What a chicken does with its eggs.

Information — How geese fly.

Foul ball — An egg.

Crow bar — Where birds like to drink and hang out.

Mona: Broken?

Sam: Yeah, he has a quack in him.

Mona: What's worse than a giraffe with a sore throat?

Sam: A centipede with athlete's foot.

Sam: I'd like to buy a bird.

Store Clerk: How about a talking mynah?

Sam: Sounds great!

Store Clerk: This one here is very talented.

She can talk in seven languages, sing The Star-Spangled Banner, and recite the Gettysburg Address.

Sam: Never mind that. Is she tender?

Rich Snob: I don't like your bird, young man.

Sam: Why not?

Rich Snob: Because every time I walk by, it says, "Cheap! Cheap!"

Why did the hen slide her eggs down the hill?

She loved playing with the children.

How much fur can you get from a skunk?

As fur as you possibly can!

How do you spell mousetrap with only three letters?

C-A-T

Mona: What kind of pet can you stand on?

Sam: A car-pet.

Mona: What kind of pet makes the loudest noise?

Sam: A trum-pet.

Mona: What kind of pet can help you write letters?

Sam: The alpha-pet.

Alex: Why is that dachshund sitting in the sun?

Amy: Because his owners like hot dogs.

Do you know how to raise rabbits?

Yes, by the scruff of their necks.

Sam: Wow! It's raining cats and dogs.

Mona: How can you tell?

Sam: I just stepped in a poodle.

Sam: Have you ever seen a fish bowl?

Mona: Sure, lots of times.

Sam: How do they get their fins into those little holes?

Father Kangaroo: Why are you scratching?

Mother Kangaroo: The kids are eating crackers in bed again.

Sam: Can you name four members of the cat family?

Mona: Papa Cat, Mama Cat, and two kittens.

Mona: How did the pig write his name?

Sam: He used an oink-pen.

What did the leopard say after dinner?

"That hit just the right spots."

Sam: Hey! Your dog bit my ankle.

Mona: Sorry, but that's as high as he can reach.

Mona: How do you keep a wild elephant from charging?

Sam: Take away his credit card.

Why Oh Why?

Pick up words as the chicken walks from START to END. Write each word down in the order in which the chicken finds them, and you'll end up with the answer to this riddle:

Why did the chicken cross the playground?

1	2	3	4	5	6
---	---	---	---	---	---

Write the answer here.

Why does a flamingo stand up on one leg?
Because if he pulled the other one up he'd fall over.

Mona: My pony sounds funny.

Sam: That's because he's a little hoarse.

"He who laughs, lasts."

— Leo Rosten

Mona: Why do hummingbirds hum?

Sam: They don't know the words.

What did the little kid say when he saw the peacock?

"Look, Ma, the chicken's in bloom!"

Sam: I haven't seen your pet chicken lately.

Mona: Well, this week she's been laying low.

Words to Know

Punch line: the part of the joke that gets the laugh

The animal doctor is always busy as a bee!

Take a gander at a few of his patients:

The leopard is seeing spots,

The kangaroo is feeling jumpy,

The goldfish is flushed,

The chameleon is looking green,

The woodpecker caught a bug,

The baby duckling has been getting a little down lately,

And the bullfrog is afraid he's going to croak!

CRAZY COLORS (OR HUE MUST BE NUTS!)

What color is a marriage?

Send him he-mail.

What has a video screen, a keyboard, six legs, and plugs into the wall?

A computer bug.

What do computer geeks eat for dessert?

Apple pie a la modem.

Did you hear about the geek who almost drowned?

He was surfing the Web and got bumped off.

Jokin' Around

Totally Buggy

Computer Viruses to Watch Out For:

The Disney Virus

The screen starts acting Goofy.

The Titanic Virus

Everything goes down.

The Diet Virus

The computer quits after just one byte.

The Las Vegas Virus

Users have to turn in their chips.

The Divorce Virus

Your motherboard stops talking to your data.

Nerd: Why is my computer screen all wet?

Dweeb: I was trying to send e-mail, but the stamps kept sliding off!

Did you hear about the guy who flunked technical college?

He can only operate nincomputers.

Nerd: How many bytes are in your software program?

Dweeb: I'll let you know as soon as I've finished eating it.

Mother: Having trouble with your computer, son?

Karl: My PC says it can't see my printer.

Mother: I'm not surprised. Look how messy your room is!

Nerd: Do you have a cursor on your computer?

Dweeb: I'll say! You should just hear the words my dad uses when the computer goes down!

Nerd: What's wrong with your keyboard?

Dweeb: Myspacebarseemstobestuck.

You heard about the computer scientist who spends half his time directing the town's orchestra?

He's a semi-conductor.

"Of course I know how to copy disks ... Where's the Xerox machine?"

If at first you don't succeed ... call it version 1.0.

What was the world's first computer?

An Apple. Eve gave one to Adam.

What are the three main parts of a printer?

The power cord, the jammed paper tray, and the blinking light.

"My computer is almost human."

"What do you mean?"

"When it makes a mistake, it blames it on another computer."

I had a rotten day at work today. My computer broke down and I had to think all day long.

TOM AND TINA SWIFTIES

“Look at the cute pony,” said Tina a little hoarsely.

“I can't remember what groceries I need,” said Tom listlessly.

“Is it time to turn the pancakes?” asked Tina flippantly.

“Look at that scroungy old dog,” Tom muttered.

“Who cut the cheese?” asked Tina sharply.

“I'd gladly give you a thousand dollars,” said Tom grandly.

"My pet bird is sick," said Tina illegally.

"Let's set up camp," said Tom intently.

"I'll make the fire," Tina bellowed.

"I got the lowest grade in my cooking class," said Tom degradedly.

"We're all out of pumpernickel bread," said Tina wryly.

"Why can't we go bowling?" Tom bawled.

"I finished taking my shower," said Tina dryly.

"Give me another strawberry cake," Tom retorted.

"These oysters are all mine!" said Tina shellfishly.

"Keep them! I prefer other seafood," said Tom crabbily.

"I love arithmetic," Tina added.

"And I love correcting my mistakes," Tom remarked.

"That's my gold mine," Tina claimed.

"But it used to be mine!" Tom exclaimed.

DIDJA HEAR?

Didja hear about the police officer who arrested the young cat?
He saw the kitty litter.

Didja hear about the baby girl who wanted to play basketball?
She had trouble dribbling.

Didja hear about the taxicab driver who lost his job?
He was driving away all his customers.

Didja hear about the pet shop owner who couldn't get sell his porcupine?

He was stuck with it.

Didja hear about the cannibal who ate his mother's sister?

He was an aunt-eater.

Didja hear about the woman who'd buy anything that was marked down?

She came home with an elevator.

Didja hear about the sailor who was kicked off the submarine?

He liked sleeping with the windows open.

Picto-Laugh #1

A pictograph is a very simple drawing of something funny. Can you guess what this little picto-laugh is showing? HINT: Think about something itsy-bitsy!

Say What?

Figure out where to put each of the scrambled letters. They all fit in spaces under their own columns. When you fill in the grid, you will have the answer to the following riddle: Didja hear about the piano tuner who was arrested at the aquarium?

Didja hear about the piano tuner who was arrested at the aquarium?

Didja hear about the rubber man from the circus who was killed in an auto wreck?

He died in his own arms.

Didja hear about the lady who stopped feeding the pigeons?

The birds revolted and formed a coo.

Didja hear about the kitten that loves to play with a piece of string?

After a while he has a ball.

LARRY AND LUNA

Luna: My poor cat doesn't have a nose!

Larry: How does she smell?

Luna: Terrible!

Luna: I must be sick. I'm seeing spots.

Larry: Have you seen a doctor?

Luna: No, just spots.

“Analyzing humor is like dissecting a frog. Few people are interested and the frog dies.”

— E. B. White

Luna: Why is it better to buy a thermometer in the winter?

Larry: Because in summer they go up!

Luna: My candy bar is missing.

Larry: That's too bad, because it tasted delicious.

Luna: What's the last thing you take off before you go to bed?

Larry: My feet off the floor.

Larry: How many feet are in a yard?

Luna: That depends on how many people are standing in it.

Luna: How many seconds are in a year?

Larry: Twelve.

Luna: Only twelve! Are you sure?

Larry: Yeah, the second of January, the second of February ...

Luna: I can tell the future.

Larry: Really?

Luna: Yes. I can tell you what the score of a soccer game is before it even starts.

Larry: What is it?

Luna: Nothing to nothing.

Larry: What's the best thing to put in a pie?

Luna: Your teeth!

Luna: Do you know how long the world's longest nose was?

Larry: Eleven inches.

Luna: That's not very long.

Larry: If it was any longer it would be a foot.

“The most wasted of all days is one without laughter.”

— e.e. cummings

Larry: Did I tell you my mom's been in the hospital for years?

Luna: Wow! She must really be sick.

Larry: Nah, she's a doctor.

Luna: I just got back from the beauty shop.

Larry: It was closed, huh?

Larry: There's something wrong with that pizza I ate.

Luna: How do you know?

Larry: Inside information.

Larry: How do you keep a skunk from smelling?

Luna: Plug his nose!

Luna: Is there any tapioca pudding on the menu?

Waiter: There was, but I wiped it off.

Larry: Why are you scratching yourself?

Luna: Because I'm the only person who knows where it itches.

Larry: What did you think of the Grand Canyon?

Luna: It was just gorges!

Luna: Who was that on the phone?

Larry: Some joker. He said, "It's long-distance from Japan," and I said, "It sure is!" and hung up.

Larry: Boy! My diet must be working.

Luna: Why do you say that?

Larry: I can finally see the numbers on the bathroom scale.

Larry: I'm on a new diet. I only eat food that swims.

Luna: That sounds great! Fish is very healthy for you.

Larry: Yuck, forget fish! Do you realize how much trouble I'm having teaching a cow to dog-paddle?

Larry: Do you believe in astrology?

Luna: No, it's just a lot of Taurus.

SCHOOL JOKES

Alex: Teacher! Teacher! Jimmy just swallowed four quarters!

Teacher: Now, why would he do that?

Alex: It's his lunch money.

Alex: Teacher! Teacher! Now, Jimmy swallowed all his pennies. And it's your fault!

Teacher: Why is it my fault?

Alex: You told him he needed more sense.

Teacher: You need to study harder, Alex. Why, when I was your age, I could recite all the presidents' names by heart.

Amy: Yeah, but there were only two or three back then.

FUN FACT

BOGGLE BOX

In his bestselling book, The BFG (Big Friendly Giant), author Roald Dahl's giant hero has his own name for everything. For instance, a school is called a "boggle box."

If you've ever been to school — and who hasn't? — you'll know that the name fits!

Teacher: Where are all the kings and queens of England crowned?

Amy: On the tops of their heads.

Teacher: Give me a sentence using the word "gladiator."

Alex: The lion ate my bossy Aunt Mimi, and I'm glad he ate her!

Teacher: Correct this sentence: "Aliens is in the classroom."

Alex: Forget the sentence, Teach! Run for your life!

Teacher: Tell me how you'd use the word "rhythm" in a sentence.

Alex: My older brother is going to the movies, and I want to go rhythm.

Teacher: Where can you find the Red Sea?

Amy: Usually on my report card.

Teacher: Let's do a simple math lesson. How many fingers do you have?

Alex: Ten.

Teacher: And if three fingers were taken away, what would you have?

Alex: I would have to give up my saxophone lessons!

Teacher: Name a creature that is very good at catching flies.

Amy: A baseball player in left field.

Teacher: Can you use the word "fascinate" in a sentence?

Alex: Yeah. My jacket has ten buttons, but I can only fasten eight.

Teacher: Can anyone tell me what a myth is?

Amy: A female moth.

Mother: Explain this "D" on your test, dear.

Amy: I'm having trouble with my Is.

Mother: You need new glasses?

Amy: No, I can't spell "Mississippi"!

Teacher: Did you wake up grouchy this morning, young man?

Alex: No, Dad and I let her sleep.

Teacher: Who was Joan of Arc?

Alex: Noah's wife.

Alex: Why are kindergarten teachers so optimistic?

Amy: Cuz every day they try to make the little things count.

Teacher: How did you get so messy?

Amy: I had an inkling of what I wanted to write my report about. So I grabbed a pen and paper.

Teacher: And then?

Amy: Then my pen had an inkling all over my shirt! Teacher: Tell me the name of the Prince of Wales.

Amy: Orca.

Mother: I don't think my child deserves a zero on this test.

Teacher: Neither do I, ma'am. But it's the lowest score I can give!

Teacher: Use the word "paradox" in a sentence.

Alex: The hunter shot a paradox flying over the lake.

Mother: Your teacher tells me you're at the bottom of the class.

Angie: Yeah, but they teach the same thing at both ends.

Teacher: Why were you late to school?

Amy: There are eight in my family, Teach, but the clock was only set for seven.

Mother: Why don't you like your new teacher, honey?

Amy: Because she told me to sit in the front row for the present. And then she never gave me any present!

Mother: Why did you have to stay after school today, Alex?

Alex: I flunked the test. I didn't know where the Appalachians were.

Mother: Well, next time remember where you put things, dear.

Teacher: That makes five times I've had to punish you this week, Darren. What do you have to say for yourself?

Darren: I'm glad it's Friday!

Alex: Would you yell at me for something I didn't do?

Teacher: Certainly not.

Alex: Good, because I didn't do my homework.

QUICKIES

One microbe ran into another microbe while swimming through a bloodstream.

"You don't look so hot," said the first microbe.

"I feel terrible," said the second microbe. "I think I'm coming down with penicillin."

If we breathe oxygen during the day, what do we breathe at night?

Nitrogen.

"I think the cuckoo in my cuckoo clock is tired."

"That's silly!"

"No, it's not. You'd be tired too if you'd been running all night."

What's the hardest thing about falling out of bed?

The floor.

Sounds Funny To Me

Match each funny sound riddle to the correct picture punchline.

1. What goes "Z-Z-U-B, Z-Z-U-B, Z-Z-U-B"?
2. What goes "HOE, HOE, HOE"?
3. What goes "ABCDEFGHJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ — sluuuurp"?
4. What goes "HA, HA, HA — thump"?
5. What goes "99 thump, 99 thump, 99 thump"?
6. What goes "tick-WOOF, tick-WOOF, tick-WOOF"?

What did the princess say while she waited for her photos to come back from the store?

"Some day my prints will come!"

Terry: Why is the Mississippi River so rich?

Nick: Because it has two banks and it makes deposits all day long.

Why are you taking that hammer to bed?

So I can get up at the crack of dawn!

What do you get for the man who has everything?

A burglar alarm!

"Long distance? I'd like to place a call to Aberystwyth, Wales."

"Could you spell that please?"

"If I could spell it, I'd write!"

How do robots celebrate Mother's Day?

They send a dozen red roses to the power company.

Judge: This is the last time I want to see you in my court! Do you realize that for the last twenty years, I've seen you in here at least once a month?

Crook: Sorry, your Honor. But it's not my fault that you haven't been promoted.

Karl: Boy, am I mad at my brother!

Trent: What did he do?

Karl: I let him ride my new bicycle, and I told him to treat it as if it were his own.

Trent: So?

Karl: He sold it.

Molar: Hey, why are you getting all dressed up?

Wisdom Tooth: The dentist is taking me out tonight.

"You're very healthy," said the doctor. "You should live to be eighty."

"But, I am eighty!" said the patient.

"See? What did I tell you?"

A young fellow was walking through an unfamiliar part of town late at night. Two muggers jumped out from the shadows and dragged him to the ground. The young guy put up quite a fight, but eventually the two thugs overpowered him.

One of the muggers grabbed the man's wallet, looked inside, and then threw it down in disgust.

"You put up all that fight for just a measly two bucks?" said the mugger.

The fellow answered, "Shucks, no. I was afraid you were gonna find the three hundred dollars I hid in my shoe."

What's the hottest day of the week?

Fry day.

What's the unhappiest day of the week?

Sadder day.

What's the driest day of the week?

Thirst day.

"Could you fix the volume on my car horn?"

"Is it broken?"

"No, but my brakes are."

Darren: Every time I have a cup of coffee, I get a sharp pain in my right eye. What should I do, Doctor?

Doctor: Take the spoon out of your cup.

Mother: Jenny, have you finished filling up the salt shakers yet?

Jenny: No, Mom. It's hard pushing the salt through those tiny holes.

Trent: Is there a place where I can catch the 1:30 bus to town?

Danny: That depends on how fast you can run. It left ten minutes ago.

A father saw his son out in the backyard cleaning their homemade swing, a rubber tire hanging by a rope from a tree branch. The son was hosing it down, wiping it off, dusting out the inside. The puzzled father went outside and said, "Son, I thought you were playing on the golf course with your friends this afternoon." "I was," replied the boy. "But the golf instructor said I needed to improve my swing."

Perry: Officer! Somebody stole my car!

Police Officer: Did you see who did it?

Perry: No, but I got the license number.

Two women met at a laundromat. As they talked, the first woman said, "I have five children." The other woman said, "That sounds nice. I wish I had five children." "Don't you have any children?" asked the first woman. "Yeah, ten!" said the second.

Jokin' Around

Eye to Eye

Make this statement to a friend: "I can put this sheet of paper down on the floor, and I'll bet we can both stand on it, but you won't be able to touch me." Your friend will be eager to take such an easy bet. Lay the sheet of paper down in a doorway. Shut the door carefully so that the two ends of the sheet stick out on either side. Voila! You and your friend will be able to stand on the sheet on opposite sides of the door. But neither of you can touch the other person. Bet won!

Tip: This trick works even better with an extra long sheet of paper.

OUTTA THIS WORLD

Why are astronauts always so clean?
Because they take meteor showers.

Which tastes better, a comet or an asteroid?
An asteroid, because it's meteor.

How is a comet like the dog Wishbone?

They're both stars with tails.

What planet goes up in the summer and down in the winter?

Mercury.

Where do astronauts eat?

The lunch-pad.

How do astronauts keep their rockets free from dust?

They drive through the vacuum of outer space.

What is at the center of Jupiter?

The letter "J."

Why couldn't the astronauts land on the moon?

Because it was full.

Why did the cowboy want to buy a satellite?

So he could watch where he was going when it got dark.

Did you hear about the astronomer who got knocked out?

He's seeing stars.

Where can you see new stars?

In Hollywood.

Astronaut: What's the difference between a Martian burp and a sandstorm?

Astronaut: Sandstorms don't glow in the dark.

Alien: I was born on the planet Neptune.

Scientist: That's amazing! Which part?

Alien: All of me.

Astronaut: What are you digging in your pockets for?

Astronaut: You said we'd be landing this thing at a meteor, and most parking meteors only take quarters.

Did you hear about the young girl who plans to be an astronaut?
Her teacher says she's taking up space!

Did you hear about the Martian who flew to Earth to buy a brand new car for his family? He told the car salesman, "I want the body green, the wheels green, the interior green, and the windows tinted green." The salesman said, "No problem." After the Martian ordered his new car, he made an interplanetary long-distance call to his wife to tell her the good news. "That's terrific, honey," said his wife. "But what color is it?" "Flesh tones," said the Martian.

Did you hear about that new restaurant on the moon?
Great food, but no atmosphere.

What's the only Irish constellation?
Orion.

"Sir, do you believe in UFOs?"
"No comet."

Two Venusians landed in front of a busy stoplight.
The first one said, "She's cute. I saw her first."
The second one said, "Yeah, but I'm the one she winked at."

What do astronauts take for a headache?

Space capsules.

“I just got back from the Dog Star.” “Sirius?”

If astronauts are so smart, why do they count backwards?

Scientist: Your mission is to land on the Sun.

Astronaut: Are you nuts? I'll burn up!

Scientist: That's why you're going at night.

Two Martians landed their spacecraft in a quiet stretch of countryside.

“I think this must be a human cemetery,” said the first Martian. “See that marker over there? It's a gravestone. And it gives the human's age, too — one hundred and two.”

“What was his name?” asked the second Martian.

“Miles to Milwaukee.”

Three Blind Mice

Look at the dice below:

Challenge your friends to take three dice, place one on a table or napkin, and balance the other two on top, side by side. First, show them how it's done. Your friends will not be able to reproduce the trick! No matter how hard they try, their top two dice will always fall off the bottom one.

How did you do it?

Spit. (No, not now!) That's the secret of the trick: spit. During the setup of the trick, while no one is paying attention to your hands, lick one of your fingertips. Then touch one of the die faces. A tiny amount of saliva will hold the two dice together, especially if you hold the dice tightly together for a second or two.

Tip: It's important to place the top two dice with the 2 and the 4 showing. Why? Because then the facing sides become the 1s on each die. The faces with 1s provide more surface area to hold your secret saliva.

When you hand the dice to your opponent, wipe off the tell-tale "glue" without drawing attention. Use your hands to rub off the spit or push the dice across the tablecloth or napkin.

The Money Drop, or The Buck Doesn't Stop Here

Take out a crisp 1-dollar bill and hold it in your right hand. Let it hang down from your thumb and forefinger. Place the fingers and thumb of your left hand loosely around the bill without touching it. Let go of the bill with your right hand and catch it in your left hand. Don't grab it until the right hand has completely let go.

Show this little movement to your friends and bet them they can't catch the bill.

Again, hold the bill in your right hand. Let them (one at a time, of course) place their left hand loosely around the hanging bill. Tell them to catch the bill after you let go. Say, "If you can catch the falling bill, it's yours to keep."

They can't do it!

Why? In the time it takes your friends' eyeballs to register that the bill is falling, and for their brain to send out a second message to their hands telling them to grab, the bill has already dropped from their grasp. Gravity works too fast in this case, faster than human reflexes.

The reason you are able to catch the bill is because your brain knows when you are about to release the bill. Your friends, however, don't have that "insider" information.

Tips: The bill should be crisp. If it is not new, fold a crease in the bill lengthwise.

Instruct your friends not to grab the bill until they see you let go.

After practicing this trick, try it with a 10- or 20-dollar bill (if you dare!).

HAVING A BALL

What has 18 legs, spits, and catches flies?
A baseball team.

Why did the football coach rip apart the pay telephone?
He was trying to get his quarterback.

“The great comics and comedians have been the ones who dared to mix comedy with tragedy.”

— Robin Tyler

(Who does Tyler think are great comics? Charlie Chaplin, Carol Burnett, Lily Tomlin, and Richard Pryor.)

Which football team travels with the most luggage?
The Packers.

What dessert should basketball players never eat?

Turnovers.

Which college team has the tallest players?

O-HIGH-O State.

Fullback: I'm sick, Coach. The doctor says I can't play football.

Coach: I don't need a doctor to tell me that!

Why is bowling cheaper than playing golf?

Because in bowling, no matter how badly you play, you can never lose the ball!

"What do you call your dad when he water skis in the winter?"

"A Popsicle."

"What does your mom call him?"

"Crazy!"

"Did you hear about the scuba diver who heard music underwater?"

"Was it a singing fish?"

"No, a coral group."

A college star fullback played with his team for 12 years!

He could run and tackle — he just couldn't pass.

What do you call a basketball player's pet chicken?

A personal fowl.

What do you get when a soccer player kicks a duck?
Someone who foots the bill.

Did you hear about the football coach who got his teeth knocked out?
He was showing a new player how to kick the ball. He held it on the ground and said, "Now when I nod my head, kick it!"
Golfer: Young man, why do you keep looking at your watch?
Caddie: This isn't a watch. It's a compass!

Did you hear about the billionaire who bought his kid 10 new golf clubs?
Each of them comes with a swimming pool and a private parking lot.

What is the quietest sport in the world?
Bowling. You can hear a pin drop.

What's the noisiest sport in the world?
Tennis. There's always a racket on the court.

Why is a baseball stadium such a cool place to be?
It's full of fans!

Did you hear about the quarterback who beat up his receiver every morning?
The quarterback gets up at six, and the receiver gets up at seven.

Golfer: Boy, the traps on this golf course are sure annoying.

Pro: I'll say, so would you please shut yours?

I heard there was a baseball team that won without ever putting a man on base.

Yeah, it was an all-girl team!

Angry Golfer: You must be the world's worst caddy!

Caddy: Oh no, that would be too much of a coincidence.

"There are two things the golf pro will not eat for breakfast."

"Really, what are they?"

"Lunch and dinner."

Why didn't the golfer wear his new shoes on the course today?

Because yesterday he got a hole in one.

Little Rosie was telling her friend about all the places her family had lived. "We must have lived in ten different towns since I was a baby." Her friend was impressed and asked, "Is your dad a minister or in the Army?" "Neither," said Rosie, "he's a football coach."

A fellow took his younger brother to the golf course with his pals. The younger boy thought he'd play his first game. He watched all the older boys tee off, and then stepped up to hit the ball.

"ONE!" he yelled, as he swung at the ball.

His brother rolled his eyes and said, "Why didn't you yell 'Fore' like the rest of us?"

The boy said, "You aim at whichever hole you want, I'm trying to hit the first one."

"Everything is funny as long as it is happening to somebody else."

— Will Rogers

Why was Cinderella such a lousy soccer player?
She had a pumpkin for a coach.

A mother brought her daughter to the golf course for the first time.

"What are those guys doing over there?" she asked her mother.

"They're checking out the sand traps."

"Cool, let's go see if they caught any."

Caddie: Here's a lost ball I found out on the course.

Boss: How do you know it was lost?

Caddie: Because they were still looking for it when I left.

Golfer: Any idea how I could cut about ten strokes off my game?

Caddie: Yeah, quit on the seventeenth hole.

GAGS AND GIGGLES

The dim-witted terrorist was sent out to blow up a car. He burned his lips on the exhaust pipe.

Two boys went to the movies. After the film had already started, they both got up and walked to the concession stand for some popcorn and soda pop. When they walked back into the darkened theater, one of the boys said to a man sitting on the aisle, "Excuse me, sir, but did we step on your toes on the way out?"

"You certainly did," said the man.

The boy turned to his friend and said, "Okay, this is our row."

There was the poor shoe salesman who had pulled out half of his stock, trying to find the perfect shoe for a young girl.

Words to Know

Gag: a laugh-provoking remark, trick, or prank

“Do you mind if I sit and rest a moment?” he asked her. “Your feet are killing me.”

A snooty young woman was put off by a man begging for money.

“Are you satisfied walking the streets like this and asking for handouts?”

“No, ma'am,” said the beggar. “I wish I could use a car.”

Harry and his friends went deer hunting one fall. The first morning they all split up and disappeared into the woods. After lunch, Harry spotted one of his friends coming out of the woods.

“Where's the rest of the guys?” asked Harry, excitedly.

“They're at the cabin,” said his friend.

“All of them?” asked Harry.

“Yeah, all of them.”

“Are you sure?”

“Yes, Harry, I'm sure,” said his friend. “Why do you keep asking?”

Harry had a big smile. “Boy, is that a relief. That means I shot a deer!”

Once the flood was over, Noah opened up the Ark and released all the animals back onto dry land. After the last animal had bounded off to freedom, Noah trudged wearily inside the ship to start the long chore of cleaning up. To his surprise, he noticed two snakes coiled up in a corner.

“Why are you two still here?” asked Noah.

One of the snakes answered, “Well, sir, you told us to go forth and multiply.”

“Yes, indeed,” said Noah.

“We can't multiply,” said the snake. “We're adders.”

A vampire took a vacation on a cruise ship. The headwaiter asked if he'd like to check out their menu.

“No thanks,” said the vampire. “But do you have a passenger list?”

Gretchen: Why are you feeding your chickens boiled water?

Karl: I want them to lay boiled eggs.

Max: There's just one thing that would make you look even better than you do now.

Dot: What's that?

Max: Distance.

Did you hear about the knothead who fell down the elevator shaft?

When he gained consciousness he yelled, "I said UP!"

Rosie: Do you think my painting is any good?

Bill: In a way.

Rosie: What kind of way?

Bill: Away off.

A fellow walks into a hotel and asks for a room.

"We don't have any rooms," said the clerk. "We're full up."

"But I've been to every other hotel in this town," said the man. "They're all full. Are you sure you don't have any room somewhere?"

"I already told you," said the clerk. "No available room."

The man thought a moment then said, "If I were the president of the United States would you have a room for me?"

"Yes," said the clerk. "If you were the president."

"Well, give me his room, then," said the man, "Because he's not coming."

Did you hear about the rich kid whose father told him, "Son, I'm sorry, but tomorrow I need the limousine and chauffeur for work."

"But, Pop," said the kid, "how will I get to school?"

"Like every other normal kid in America," said the father. "You'll take a cab."

A prisoner on his way to the electric chair was asked if he had any last requests.

"I'd like some strawberries," says the prisoner.

"Strawberries?" says the guard. "They're not in season for six months yet."

The prisoner says, "Fine. I'll wait."

"We saw the Grand Canyon in ten days."

"That's a long vacation."

"Yeah, it took us five days to drive through and another five to refold the maps."

How did they measure hail before golf balls were invented?

"Are you sure you've ridden a horse before?"

"Oh yes."

"Then what kind of saddle would you like?

With a horn or without?"

"I'll take the one without a horn. I doubt if I'll run into much traffic."

You heard what Noah told his son when they went fishing?

"Easy on the bait, son, we only have two worms."

A newspaper reporter was interviewing a gnarled, wrinkled, white-haired farmer as he sat quietly rocking on his front porch.

"Sir," said the reporter. "I'd like to know the secret of your long life."

"Well, son," replied the farmer. "I drink a gallon of whisky, smoke ten cigars, and stay out partying every night of the week."

"That's amazing," said the reporter. "And how old are you?"

"Twenty-six."

"The joke loses everything when the joker laughs himself."

Bottom's Up

Bet your friends or family that you can drink from a soda pop can without opening it or tampering with it in any way. They'll think you're nuts! But you can prove them wrong.

Take a soda pop can and then turn it over. All aluminum pop cans have a slight indentation on the bottom. You can easily fill this indentation with water (or with pop from a different can). You'll be able to sip your drink from the can's bottom without opening it or tampering with it.

Tip: When making the bet, be sure to tell them that you will “drink from a can” and not “drink out of a can.” The words are important. Say the wrong thing and your friends and family can trip you up, and you'll be forced to eat — or drink — your own words!

Mother: Honey, ask the butcher if he has calf's tongue.

Jimmy: Why ask? I'll just wait until he opens his mouth and look.

Mother (looking at the meat display): Jimmy, can you tell if the butcher has pickled pig's feet?

Jimmy: No, I can't. He's wearing shoes.

"Did you hear the news? They rescued a man from the swamp this morning whose foot was bitten off by an alligator!"

"Which one?"

"Who knows? All alligators look the same."

Have you heard about that new dog food?

It tastes like a mail carrier.

A rookie cop got bawled out by his sergeant after working his first stakeout.

"How could you let that crook escape?" yelled the sergeant. "I told you to keep an eye on all the exits."

"I did, Sarge. He must have gone out one of the entrances."

THE WORLD'S SEVEN BEST LIMERICKS

There was a young lady named Bright
Whose speed was much faster than light.
She went out one day
In a relative way
And came back on the previous night.

There was a young fellow of Crete
Who was so exceedingly neat,
When he got out of bed
He stood on his head
To make sure of not soiling his feet.

There was a young lady of Niger
Who smiled as she rode on a tiger.
They returned from the ride
With the lady inside
And the smile on the face of the tiger.

The bottle of perfume that Willie sent
Was highly displeasing to Millicent.
Her thanks were so cold
That they quarreled, I'm told,
'Bout that silly scent Willie sent Millicent.

Words to Know

Limerick: a light or humorous verse with a specific rhythm and rhyme scheme

A flea and a fly in a flue
Were imprisoned so what could they do?
Said the fly, "Let us flee,"
Said the flea, "Let us fly,"
So they flew through a flaw in the flue.

A certain young man named Bill Beebee
Was in love with a lady named Phoebe

“But,” he said, “we must see
What the clerical fee be Before Phoebe be Phoebe Beebee.”

There once was a maid from Japan
Whose limericks never would scan.
When they questioned her why,
She replied, “Because I Like to squeeze as many syllables into the concluding line of the limerick as I possibly can.”

FUN FACT

BRIEFLY FUNNY

Limericks have been making people laugh for over a hundred years.
But funny stuff can always be improved on. Comic poet Ogden Nash invented a streamlined, or mini version, of the Limerick called the Limick.

An outlaw from Spain
Fled to Paris by train
Where he jumped in the river —
They found him in-Seine.

A fellow from Hutton's,
The grandest of gluttons,
Makes room for dessert
By popping his buttons.

It's Rhyme Time

Add the missing letter in each of the following words to make a group of words that all rhyme. Now choose the three words that will correctly finish the limerick below. BE CAREFUL! Sometimes more than one letter can be used to make a word. If you can't find three words in your list that fit in the limerick, go back to the word list and try making other words.

LAUGHING STOCK

“Does your family own a cat?”

“No, why?”

“I thought I heard it meowing last night.”

“That’s just our dog. He’s been listening to foreign language tapes.”

Jenny: Doctor, I have a problem. I love Bermuda shorts.

Doctor: Lots of people love Bermuda shorts.

Jenny: With mustard and relish?

“I got a role in the new Tarzan movie. Boy, you should have seen all the crazy animals we had to work with.”

“Were you the star?”

“No, but when the lion got loose and chased the cast, I was the leading man!”

“The best humor is the most obvious. When the audience has to stop and think too hard about a punchline, the punch is lost.”

Harold and Stanley were brothers. Harold went on a business trip and asked Stanley to look after his pet kitten. The first night of his trip, Harold phoned his brother and asked how little Buttons was doing.

"Buttons is dead," said Stanley, flatly.

Harold was appalled. "Stanley! That's no way to tell me bad news."

"How should I have told you?" asked Stanley.

"Break it to me gently," said Harold. "Little by little. You could have said that Buttons was up on the roof. Then say you had to call the fire department. Then say the ladder wasn't long enough. Then tell me that Buttons tried to jump. And then you could have said he was in the hospital. And that he was growing weaker and weaker. That he stopped eating. Then, eventually, you could have told me that poor Buttons died."

"Sorry," said Stanley. "I'll know better next time."

"All right," said Harold. "By the way, how's Mom?"

"Well, she's up on the roof."

A miser won the lottery with a ticket he bought — $1,000,000! But he still seemed depressed. "What's wrong?" asked his neighbor. The miser sighed and said, "When I think of the dollar I wasted buying this other lottery ticket."

Joey: Yuck! This is the worst tasting apple pie I ever had!

Waiter: What does it taste like?

Joey: Glue!

Waiter: Then that's the pumpkin pie. The apple pie tastes like mud.

Mother: Billy, what is all that grass doing sticking out of your pockets?

Billy: The worms in there have to eat something, don't they?

Troop Leader: Do you know how to make a fire with just two sticks?

Cub Scout: Yes, sir. As long as one of the sticks is a match.

My poor sister had an awful time of it. First she got arthritis and rheumatism. And after that she got appendicitis, tonsillitis, and then pneumonia. They even had to give her hypodermics. Whew! I didn't think she'd ever make it through that spelling contest!

Five-year-old Kevin came running down the stairs, wailing and weeping. "What ever is the matter?" asked his mother. "I was upstairs with Daddy," said Kevin. "He was putting up pictures. And he hit his thumb with the hammer." The mother grinned. "That's all right, honey. Your daddy is a grown-up man. He doesn't let something like that worry him. And you shouldn't either. You should have just laughed." Then Kevin sobbed, "I did!"

My doctor believes in shock therapy. That's why he sends me his bill!

"Excuse me, could you tell me the fastest way to get to the hospital?"
"Stand in traffic."

"I was thinking of attending the time-management workshop."

"When does it start?"

"Oh, fivish, sixish."

A man walked into an antique store. It was filled with beautiful furniture, fine old paintings, and housewares of silver and crystal. Nothing caught his eye. As he turned to leave, however, he noticed the owner's cat licking milk out of a delicate china saucer. The man knew at a glance that the saucer was priceless, and he figured the stupid owner didn't realize what a treasure was sitting just beneath his nose.

The man casually struck up a conversation with the owner.

"Nice cat you got there."

"Thanks," said the owner. "He's a good cat, but I never seem to have enough time for him."

"Hmmm, would you be interested in selling him?" asked the man.

"Sure, if you're serious," said the owner.

"You can have him for five bucks."

"Deal."

The man paid his five dollars, then picked up the cat and headed toward the door. "Oh, by the way," said the man, turning around. "You probably wouldn't mind if I just took that old milk saucer would you? The cat seems to like it."

"Are you kidding?" grinned the man. "That saucer has helped me sell seventy cats in the last month!"

"I'm on that new Japanese diet."

"How does that work?"

"You're only allowed to use one chopstick."

A doctor walks into a hospital room and stands next to the bed of his patient.

"Mister Cooper, I have some good news and some bad news."

"What is it, Doc?"

"The bad news is that we have to amputate both your feet."

"That's horrible! What's the good news?"

"The patient in the next bed wants to buy your shoes."

Picto-Laugh #3

A pictograph is a very simple drawing of something funny. Can you guess what this little picto-laugh is showing? HINT: Think about Mexican hats and exercise!

First Scientist: I discovered the perfect cure for dandruff.

Second Scientist: What is it?

First Scientist: Baldness.

Years ago, a huge ship was passing through a thick fog. Suddenly, up ahead, it saw a bright and unexpected light. The ship signaled: "Veer off!"

The reply: "You veer off!"

The captain of the ship became furious. He told his signal man, "Tell that idiot to veer off! Doesn't he realize this battleship is heading his way?"

The signal man obeyed the command and then waited for a reply.

"Well, what did he say?" asked the angry captain.

The signal man answered, "Well, sir, he says, 'Don't you realize this lighthouse is heading your way?'"

Harold got a summer job painting yellow stripes down the middle of the highway. The first day he did an excellent job and painted a strip a mile long. But the second day he painted only half a mile. And the third day Harold painted even less.

Finally, his angry boss told him, "Harold, you're slacking off! Each day you paint less and less."

Harold replied, "I know. But each day it gets longer and longer to walk back to that bucket!"

"Are you gonna get a job?"

"No, I'm gonna change my name."

Did you hear about the elephant hunter who hurt his back?
He was carrying decoys.

A miser walks into a dentist's office and asks the dentist how much he charges for pulling a tooth.

"Thirty bucks," said the dentist.

"Here's five," said the miser. "Just loosen it a little."

A young girl entered the courthouse and registered for a name change.

"What's your name now?" asked the clerk.

"Betty Stinks," said the girl.

The clerk laughed for almost a full minute. "I can understand why you'd want to change it," the clerk finally said. "What are you changing it to?"
"Elizabeth Stinks."

First Fisher: Is this a good lake for fish?

Second Fisher: It must be. I can't get any of them to come out.

Two cars, driving from opposite directions, met in the middle of a narrow bridge that was wide enough to let only one car pass at a time.

The first motorist rolled down his window, stuck his head out, and yelled, "I never back up for jerks!"

The second driver put his car in reverse and yelled, "That's all right. I always do!"

"I want to see Dr. Braun."

"He's not here at the moment. But I'm sure Dr. Wilson could help you."

"I don't want Dr. Wilson. I want Dr. Braun."

"Then you'll just have to wait."

"Fine. How long?"

"Two weeks. Dr. Braun just left on his vacation."

A mother raced into a doctor's office, pulling her son along behind her.

"Tell me, Doctor," she said, "can a ten-year-old boy take out a person's appendix?"

"Don't be ridiculous," said the doctor. "Of course not."

"See, Jimmy? You heard the doctor. Now go put that right back!"

Jimmy: This is the slowest train I've ever been on! Conductor, can't you run any faster?

Conductor: Sure I can. But I have to stay on the train.

Larry: Why don't we fall off the earth and go shooting through space?

Perry: The law of gravity.

Larry: Then what did we do before that law was passed?

A young girl walked into a clothing store with her mother. "I'd like to try on that dress in the window," she said.

"Well, young lady," said the clerk, "we'd prefer that you use one of our dressing rooms."

Jimmy: How's your new job on the construction site?

Derek: Awful! After one week, I'm through with it!

Jimmy: What for?

Derek: Lots of reasons. The constant complaining, the laziness, the sloppiness, the bad language. They just wouldn't put up with it anymore!

It's Joke Time!

Draw a line from each riddle to the clock that shows the correct answer. HINT: It helps to read the time on each clock aloud.

Dottie was having trouble learning her directions, especially the difference between north and south. So her mother tried a little quiz. "Dottie, if you were standing with your back to the east, and your face to the west, what would be on your right hand?" Dottie said, "Four fingers and a thumb."

Teacher: My goodness, Amy! You've been burping all morning.

Amy: It must have been those belchin' waffles I ate for breakfast.

Matty: We learned today that people who live north of the Arctic Circle eat whale meat and blubber.

Mary: I'd blubber too if that's all I had to eat.

Mom: Amy, what are you doing home from school so early?

Amy: The teacher asked me how far I could count, so I counted all the way home.

"My aunt always nagged my uncle to buy her a Jaguar."

"Did he ever get one?"

"Yeah, then it ate her up!"

Circus Clown: How do you like your new job?

Trapeze Artist: I'm finally getting the hang of things.

And if you pun way too much, your friends can accuse you of "quibble-ism."

NUTS FROM THE FAMILY TREE

Mother: What's the best way to discipline children?

Father: Start at the bottom.

Ashley: Everyone says I got my good looks from my father.

Jason: Oh, is he a plastic surgeon?

"My older brother thinks he's a chicken."

"You should take him to a doctor."

"Why? We need the eggs."

Mother: Darling, will you still love me when my hair is gray?

Father: Why not? I loved you through those five other colors.

At the airport, Mother turned to Father and said, "I sure wish we had brought the television with us."

"Why is that?" asked Father.

"Because I left the plane tickets on it."

"We got a dog for my little brother."

"I wish my Dad would let me make a trade like that."

Karl and Ben went out hunting. They were just bedding down in their tents one night when a huge snarling bear lumbered into their campsite. Karl quickly knelt down and started lacing up his sneakers.

"What good will that do?" shouted Ben. "You can't outrun a bear."

Karl replied, "I only have to outrun you!"

A very proud grandmother was walking through the park, pushing her two grandchildren in a stroller. A young woman walked by and said, "My, what fine looking little boys. They must be your grandsons." "Yes they are," said the grandmother. "How old are they?" asked the younger woman. "The lawyer is three and the doctor is two."

Jason: What's it like having a twin sister?

Megan: It's just like being an only child. Except twice.

"Mom, guess what? I won the election for class president!"

"Honestly?"

"Did you have to bring that up?"

"Humor has to come in under cover of darkness, in disguise, and surprise people."

— Garrison Keillor

"Dad, where is yesterday's newspaper?"

"Your mother wrapped the garbage in it and threw it away."

"Darn, I wanted to see it."

"There wasn't much to see. Just some old egg cartons and dogfood cans and apple cores and ..."

"My dad used to write for TV. He wrote The Jeffersons, The Hughleys, and The PJs."

"Did they ever write back?"

"I can always tell when my big brother is lying."

"How's that?"

"He moves his lips."

"What are you having for dinner tonight?"

"Reruns."

"Reruns?"

"Yeah, leftover TV dinners."

"My brother made a right turn from the left lane and crashed into another car. The other driver jumped out and yelled at my brother. Why didn't you signal? he asked."

"What did your brother say?"

"He said, 'Why should I signal? I always turn here.'"

My Dad is a real pessimist. He just opened up a new Chinese restaurant and he only sells misfortune cookies.

"Doctor, my sister thinks she's an elevator.
Can you help her?"

"Have her come up to my office."

"I would, but she doesn't stop at your floor."

"George Washington's parents were really thoughtful."

"What makes you say that?"

"They made sure their kid was born on a holiday."

Troy: Mom! Megan said I was dumb.

Mother: Megan, apologize to your brother!

Megan: Okay. I'm sorry you're dumb.

"My sister loves to eat."

"What's her favorite food?"

"Seconds."

Troy: Your piano playing stinks!

Megan: Well, for your information, that piece I was playing is very difficult.

Troy: Too bad it's not impossible.

"My brother is connected with the police."

"How's he connected?"

"With handcuffs."

Alex: My dad lost his wallet with over three hundred bucks in it.

Troy: Wow!

Alex: And he's offering a reward of twenty dollars to whoever finds it.

Troy: I'll give you thirty.

Three comedians were asked which is funnier: a witty line or someone slipping on a banana peel. Fran Lebowitz and Ellen DeGeneres both said that falling down is funnier. Lily Tomlin said it "depends on who's doing the slipping."

Amy: Dad, the landlord is here for the rent.

Father: Tell him I'm not home.

Amy: I can't lie like that!

Father: All right, I'll tell him myself.

Alex: Mom, I think it's time I got an allowance.

Mother: How about I give you double what I give your little brother, Matt?

Alex: But Matt gets zero allowance.

Mother: Okay, so I'll give you triple.

A young boy was telling his teacher all about the new addition to his family. "And every night," complained the boy, "little Kevin wakes everyone up with his crying."

"Well, he's just a wee little thing," said the teacher.

"No," said the boy. "He's a wee-wee thing. That's why he's crying."

Mother: Why did you kick your little brother in the stomach?

Jimmy: He turned around.

Teacher: How do you make antifreeze?

Rosie: Steal her blanket.

The real-estate agent told the family, "I'll be honest with you. This house has its good points as well as its bad points."

"What are the bad points?" asked the father.

"Just north of here is a toxic waste dump. And just south is a huge hog farm."

"What are the good points?" asked the mother.

"You can always tell which way the wind is blowing."

In the middle of a sweltering summer afternoon, the Thomas family was entertaining out-of-town guests. When supper was ready, the father asked the youngest son to say the blessing.

The boy whispered to his father, "But what do I say?"

The father replied, "Just say what you've heard me say before."

So the boy bowed his head and said in a loud voice, "Oh Lord, why in heaven's name did I ever invite these people on a hot day like today?"

Jimmy: My sister thinks I'm too nosy.

Troy: Did she tell you that?

Jimmy: No, that's what I read in her diary.

"What are you drawing, honey?"

"A picture of God."

"But no one knows what God looks like."

"They will when I'm finished with this."

"My brother has laryngitis, so he's talking with his hands."

"Is that why he's snapping his fingers?"

"Yeah, he has the hiccups."

Danny: Guess what, Dad? Mom backed the car out of the garage and ran right over my new bike.

Father: That'll teach you to leave it parked out on the front lawn.

"Young man, there were two cookies in the jar last night, and this morning there is only one.

How do you explain that?"

"It was so dark, I guessed I missed it."

My mom gets carsickness every month — when she looks at the payment.

Mother: Rosie! Why did you fall in the mud puddle with your new dress on?

Rosie: There wasn't time to take it off.

Father: I think our son must get his brains from me.

Mother: Probably, because I still have all mine.

Matt: Dad! The dog just ate the pie Mom finished baking.

Father: That's all right, son, don't worry. We'll get you a new dog.

Did you hear about the nervous father who is pacing up and down in the hospital lobby, waiting to hear about the birth of his first child? Finally, after several hours, the nurse arrives. The father runs up to her and asks, "Nurse, tell me, is it a boy?" The nurse says calmly, "Well, the middle one is."

Mother: Boys, stop fighting! Who started this anyway?

Nick: Matt started it when he hit me back.

Aunt Missy: Do you know what an opera is, Rosie?

Rosie: Yeah, it's where someone gets stabbed and instead of bleeding they sing.

A grandmother took her little five-year-old grandson with her shopping. At one point in the store the little boy said loudly, "I have to go pee-pee." The grandmother shook her head and said, "No, dear. When you need to use the bathroom you say that you have to whisper. All right?"

That night the five-year-old woke up at midnight and toddled into his parents' bedroom. "Daddy," he said, tugging on his father's arm, "I have to whisper! I have to whisper!"

The father sleepily turned over on his side and said, "All right, son. Go ahead and whisper right in my ear."

PICTO-LAUGH #6

A pictograph is a very simple drawing of something funny. Can you guess what this little picto-laugh is showing? HINT: Think about a game of hide-n-seek!

"My sister ran the hundred-yard dash in five seconds."

"That's impossible! The world record isn't even eight seconds."

"She knows a short cut."

"Do you have to make so much noise when you eat?"

"Our teacher told us to start the day with a sound breakfast."

Ben: Why are you jumping up and down?

Karl: I just took some medicine, and the bottle said to shake well.

“You sure take your car in for lots of repairs.”

“I know, my dad is always braking it.”

Mother: Why are you standing in front of the mirror with your eyes shut?

Melody: I want to see what I look like asleep.

Rhyming Riddles

Draw a line to match each riddle to the proper picture.

It keeps you nice and very neat — has lots of teeth, but cannot eat.

It runs all night, and runs all day, but never, ever runs away.

Sits on the table by your plate and cup — if it falls down, it might stick up.

Sometimes curly, sometimes flat — it's over the head and under a hat.

"My dad only eats at the finest restaurants."

"How do you know that?"

The Woman on the Bus

A woman was riding the bus down-town with her new baby.

A rude passenger sitting across the aisle took one look at the woman and her baby and said, "That's the ugliest baby I ever saw in my life. Looks just like a monkey." The woman was so upset that she quickly got off the bus at the very next stop. She walked over to a park bench, sat down, and started crying.

A young man walking by noticed the poor woman. "What's wrong?" he asked her. But the woman was too upset to tell him. It was a hot day out, so the man walked over to a convenience store and a few minutes later returned to the park bench.

The young man handed the woman a can of soda pop. "It's so hot out, I thought you might like this," he said. The woman gratefully accepted his offer. "Thank you very much," she said. Then the man reached into his pocket. "Here, take this," he said. "I bought a banana for your monkey, too."

"Why aren't you sharing your scooter with your little brother?"

"I am, Mom, half and half. I use it on the way down the hill, and he has it on the way up the hill."

Heather: I just finished giving my kitten a bath.

Tracy: Does she mind it?

Heather: No, she likes it. But afterwards it always takes me a while to get rid of the fur on my tongue.

Mother: What a dirty face! Your Aunt Missy won't kiss you like that.

Alex: That's what I figured.

Mother: What's your little brother yelling about?

Sandy: I don't know. I let him lick the beater after I made peanut butter fudge. Maybe I should have turned it off first.

A young boy, taking a vacation cruise with his parents, turned green with seasickness.

The boy shook his head and replied, “Just throw it overboard, Mom, and save me the trip to the railing.”

SPOONERISMS

The Reverend William Archibald Spooner (1844–1930) of Oxford University in England was famous for getting his tongue tied. Instead of saying “Our Lord is a loving shepherd,” Spooner called him a “shoving leopard.” Instead of sitting on a “stone bench,” he'd relax on a “bone stench.” Spoonerism is now the name we give a gag or phrase where the first letters of a word are exchanged for another. Below are some of the Reverend's sillier blunders.

- He whispered to a young man in an overcrowded church: “Excuse me, sir, but you're occupewing my pie. May I sew you to another sheet?”
- He told a tardy student: “You have hissed all my mystery lectures!”
- To a group of farmers, he started a speech by saying: “I have never before spoken to so many tons of soil.”

- After performing a wedding ceremony, he then instructed the nervous groom: “It is kisstomary to cuss the bride.”

A SPONERFUL OF TEA (A TRUE STORY)

The Reverend Spooner met a stranger while strolling through the university grounds one evening.

Spooner: Come to my place for tea tomorrow, young man. We're having a welcome party for the new math professor.

Stranger: But I am the new math professor.

Spooner: That's all right. Come anyway.

SPONER'S BUG

Q: What spoonerism has become a common word that refers to something we see during the summer months?

A: Butterfly. The insect was once known as a flutter-by, named for its fluttery, delicate movement.

NUN OF THAT

A new nun joined a special order where all the sisters had to take a vow of silence. Only two words were allowed each sister per year. After the first year, the Mother Superior asked the newest nun how things were going.

“Bad food,” said the nun.

The next year the Mother Superior asked the nun the same question.

“Hard beds,” said the nun.

At the end of the third year, the nun walked up to the Mother Superior and said, “I quit!”

“Well I'm not surprised,” said the Mother Superior. “Ever since you got

Quick Draw

These funny drawings show the names of three common things. Can you guess what each is?

WAY-OUT OUT WEST (COWBOY JOKES)

A cowboy was riding his horse one day when he accidentally got thrown off. The quick-thinking horse pulled the cowboy to a shady oasis, propped him up against a tree, and then galloped off for help. He soon returned with some folks from a neighboring town, including a doctor. The doctor and the others brought the cowboy into town and nursed him back to full health.

A week later, when the cowboy was telling his buddies at the saloon this story, one of them said, "That's the gol-dang smartest horse I ever heard tell of."

"Aw, he ain't that smart," said the cowboy. "The doctor he brung with him was a vet."

A cowboy bought a beautiful new horse. The salesman told him that the horse's former owner had been a famous preacher.

"This horse is very religious," said the salesman. "And he only responds to special commands. For instance, instead of saying Giddy-up, you say Praise the Lord. And instead of telling him to Whoa! you say Hallelujah. Got that?"

"Praise the Lord and Hallelujah," nodded the cowboy.

Weeks later, the cowboy was riding through unfamiliar territory. Gorges and cliffs fell hundreds of feet on either side of the trail. The cowboy wanted to stop and take a rest, but he confused the two words the salesman had taught him.

"Praise the Lord," the cowboy said, but the horse kept on galloping faster and faster. The cowboy saw that the trail up ahead ended in a dangerous cliff. He tugged and pulled at the reins even harder and yelled, "Praise the Lord! Praise the Lord!" but the horse continued to race toward the cliff.

All at once, the cowboy remembered the right word.

"Hallelujah!" he cried.

The horse immediately stopped, mere inches from the crumbling edge of the cliff.

The cowboy breathed a sigh of relief and pulled off his hat, wiping the dust from his eyes.

"Praise the Lord," he said.

Turtle Soup

Three little turtles, who lived in the same house together, were having Sunday dinner. They each sipped their own bowl of soup.

"This soup would sure taste better with some bread," said the first turtle.

"We're all out of bread," said the second turtle.

"Well, I'm not going to the store," said the third, and littlest, turtle.

"If I go, you two will eat my soup."

The other two turtles promised him they would never touch his soup. "Go to the store and hurry back," said the first turtle. So the littlest turtle reluctantly walked out the door.

Minutes stretched into hours. Hours stretched into days. A week later, the turtles were still waiting for their friend to return from the store with the bread.

The first turtle said, "I don't think he's ever coming back. We might as well go ahead and have his soup."

Just then, the littlest turtle poked his head back inside the door. "See?" he said. "I knew if I left you guys would eat my dinner!"

MONEY IS ONLY PAPER

Tallulah Bankhead (1903–1968) was a flamboyant actress known for her generosity as well as for saying whatever popped into her head. Once when Tallulah was using a lady's bathroom, sitting in a stall, she realized there was no toilet paper.

She called over to the next stall, "Have you any toilet paper, darling?"

"No, I'm afraid not."

"Hmm, any tissue paper?"

"Sorry, no."

Tallulah paused and then asked calmly, "Have you two fives for a ten?"

A NUTTY CRIME

A judge had three young boys come before his bench.

The first boy said, "All I did, Your Honor, was break a window, wreck someone's bike, and throw peanuts in the lake." The second boy said, "Me too, Your Honor. I only broke a small window, wrecked a friend's bike, and threw peanuts in the lake."

The third boy said, "All I did was break a window and wreck a bike."

The judge turned to the third boy and said, "Didn't you throw peanuts in the lake?"

The boy said, "I'm Peanuts."

MORE NUTS

A man walks into a fancy bar and orders a glass of wine. It's early evening and the bar has only a few customers.

The man hears a voice next to him say, "Nice tie." The man looks around, but there is no one sitting nearby. He figures he must be hearing things.

He takes a sip of wine and hears, "I like that suit you're wearing." Again, the man swivels around on his chair but sees no one.

Another sip of wine and the man hears, "That blue shirt really brings out your eyes."

"Okay!" says the man. "That does it! What's going on, and who keeps talking to me?"

The bartender, unfazed, looks over at the man and says, "It's just the peanuts, mister. They're complimentary."

FUN FACT

PRETTY FUNNY

Have you ever noticed how few handsome men or beautiful women are comedians? There are a few exceptions: Cary Grant, Carole Lombard, Tom Selleck, Cybill Shepherd, Julia-Louis Dreyfus. Woody Allen, the director of Sleeper, Bullets Over Broadway, Bananas, and Annie Hall, has his own theory. "Funny and pretty are opposites," he says. But the standup comic Mort Sahl has a different idea. He enjoyed telling jokes, he says, because to him "people always look better when they laugh."

Bruce Vilanch, the incredibly busy Hollywood writer, widely known for his stint as the big, blond funnyman on Hollywood Squares, shares this advice about writing comedy: "Rewriting is really what good writing is all about!" Asked if there is any subject he would not write a joke about, Vilanch replies: "My rule of thumb is, did anybody die? It's difficult to do a joke in which death is involved ... it's just cruel."

CLASSIC ONE-LINERS

A one-liner is a joke that is told in one line or sentence. Or else several phrases are strung together and spoken without a break. For example:
My room is so small ...

I closed the door and the doorknob was in bed with me.

the mice are hunchbacked.

when I turn around, I'm next door.

I put the key in the keyhole and broke the window.

I have to go outside to change my mind.

when I stand up I'm on the second floor.

the ceiling gets dusted whenever I comb my hair.

MORE ONE-LINERS

A mummy is an Egyptian who's pressed for time.

I saw a sign on the back of a truck: "Careful Passing. I Like to Chew Tobacco."

I'm a terrible cook. All the gingerbread boys
I make are nearsighted so I've started using contact raisins.

What do you get if you cross a hill with an electric stove?
A mountain range.

My mom went to the beauty salon and got a mud pack — for three days she looked great — then the mud fell off.

The standup comic Henry Youngman is called the King of the One-Liners. Rodney Dangerfield and Steven Wright are also terrific one-line jokesters. Here's one of Wright's loopy one-liners: "I live on a one-way, deadend street. I don't know how I got there."

MEDICAL MARVELS

PUMP UP THE LAUGHTER

Did you know that by simply telling a joke you are exercising 72 different muscles in your neck, throat, mouth, and tongue? Laughing uses over 100 muscles. No wonder some people say they "laughed 'til they hurt." They just had a workout without even realizing it!

A JOKE A DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Dr. Lee Berk of the Loma Linda School of Public Health in California discovered that laughing increases the body's antibodies and T cells, which help fight off infection and alien bacteria.

Dr. William Fry of Stanford University says that laughing 200 times will burn up the same amount of calories as 10 minutes on a rowing machine.

Does that make Dumb and Dumber a workout video?

FUNNY BONE

Your funny bone isn't actually a bone, it's a nerve — the ulnar nerve, in fact. This nerve is exposed as it travels over the medial condyle of the humerus, er, the bony knob at the end of your upper arm. Some clever (and unknown) medical student saw the punny resemblance between the words “humerus” and “humorous” and created the notion of the funny bone. Hitting your funny bone, however, is no laughing matter!

Comic Biography

Quick on Her Feet

Carol Burnett, the former queen of prime time comedy (1967–1979), was getting out of a taxicab in front of the TV studio. She accidentally slammed the door shut on her coat and the oblivious cabbie took off. Carol was forced to run along side in order not to be dragged off her feet. After running several blocks, she was finally rescued by a pedestrian who hailed the cab and brought the vehicle to a stop.

The cabbie, now realizing what had happened, jumped out of his car and ran to Carol's side. “Are you all right?” he asked.

“Fine,” panted Carol. “But how much more do I owe you?”

IN THE BAG

A guy was trying to cross the border into the next country on his bicycle. Two suspicious-looking bags were tied to the back of the bike.

The border guards stopped him and said, "Hey, buddy, what's in the bags?"

“Sand,” said the man.

The guards pulled off the two bags and examined them. They both contained only sand, just as the man said, so they waved him through the border.

This went on each week for six months. And each time the guards examined the bags they still found only sand.

One week the man stopped coming. One of the guards ran into the man downtown after work.

“Hey buddy,” said the guard. “You sure had us going. We knew you were smuggling something.”

The man just grinned.

“C'mon and tell me,” whispered the guard. “I won't say anything. What were you smuggling?”

“Bicycles,” said the man.

BURMA-SHAVE: THE UNKNOWN COMIC WITH AN EDGE

Years ago, when American families motored through the heartland on their way to a favorite vacation spot, they looked forward to reading the silly rhymes posted along the highways by the Burma-Shave company. Burma-Shave was a shaving cream for men, and the clever rhymes were posted — one line at a time — along highways and back roads all over the country. Kids and grownups tried to guess what the next rhyme would be before they drove past it. The highway poet remains anonymous, but here are a few of his, or her, best rhymes, broken up into separate lines as they appeared on separate signs along the way.

Kurt: Well, at my job everyone looks up to me.

Thom: What do you do?

Kurt: I'm a kindergarten teacher.

Teacher: What is a light year?

Melody: A year with very little homework.

Rosie: What kind of fish are you frying?

Mother: Smelt.

Rosie: I sure can. But what kind of fish is it?

Doctor: Young man, you're going to need a flu shot.

Matt: Will it hurt?

Doctor: I'll be fine, but thanks for asking.

Jimmy: Where were you born?

Derek: On Rivers Avenue.

Jimmy: You're lucky you weren't run over by a bus!

Amy: The dog bit me in a very painful spot.

Rosie: Where'd he bite you?

Amy: In the backyard!

Gretchen: How does Old MacDonald spell "farm"?

Heather: E. I. E. I. O.

Troy: Excuse me, are you the head doctor here?

Doctor: No, I'm the foot doctor.

Melody: She's called Mom. She delivers me to school, to my girlfriends' houses, to the mall, to soccer practice ...

Trent: That sure is cool exercise equipment.

Matt: Thanks, I got it at the gym.

Trent: Did they have a sale?

Matt: No, they had a sign that said Free Weights.

Heather: You should see my new watch. It's rust-proof, dustproof, shockproof, waterproof, and never needs batteries.

Gretchen: Cool, let's see it.

Heather: I lost it. So if you should see it, let me know!

Jimmy: My older brother Dave crashed his car into a tree going forty miles an hour.

Troy: Wow! I didn't know trees could move that fast!

ELEPHANT JOKES

No one knows how or why, but about 40 years ago elephant jokes stampeded onto the scene and became extremely popular. Here are a few samples of loopy, sometimes bizarre, pachyderm humor:

Can an elephant jump higher than a house?

Of course. Houses can't jump at all.

Why do elephants lie on their back?

They like to trip low-flying birds with their feet.

What do you get when you cross an elephant with peanut butter?

A pachyderm that sticks to the roof of your mouth.

What's the difference between an elephant and a grape?
Grapes are purple.

Why did the elephants quit their job at the factory?
They were tired of working for peanuts.

What did Jane say when she saw the elephants coming over the hill?
"Here come the elephants!"

What did Tarzan say?
"Here come the grapes!" He was color blind.

Picto-Laugh #8

A pictograph is a very simple drawing of something funny. Can you guess what this little picto-laugh is showing? HINT: Think about broken elevators!

Two In One

You have to complete TWO puzzles to get the answer to this riddle:

Why did the elephant sit on the marshmallow?

1. First use a simple alphabet code (A=B, B=C, C=D, etc.) to figure out the first part of the answer.

SN JDDO EQNL

EZKKHMF HMSN SGD

2. Then connect the dots to find the second part of the answer.

How do you get down off an elephant?
You don't get down off an elephant. You get down off a duck.

How do you catch an elephant?
Hide in the bushes and act like a peanut.

How do you get the wrinkles out of an elephant's skin?

Take him out of the dryer as soon as it stops.

Why don't elephants smoke?

Their butts are too big to set in the ashtrays.

Why are elephants easier to find in Alabama?

Because in Alabama you'll find Tuscaloosa (tusks are looser).

What weighs 2000 pounds, has big ears, tusks, and two trunks?

An elephant going on vacation.

What's big and gray and goes up and down, up and down?

An elephant bungee jumping.

Elemorphant

Can you turn an elephant into a peanut in three steps? Start with the word ELEPHANT. In each step, you can do only one of the following things — delete a group of letters, add a letter, or change one letter into another. Remember, you have to end up with PEANUT in Step 3!

HINT: Keep track of the letters on the lines provided.

Jay Leno was once asked to name a comedian's most important tool. "A tape recorder!" he replied. Not to record the comedian, but to record the audience. Leno urges new comedians to listen and relisten to their live performances and note when the audience laughed, when they didn't laugh, if the jokes were fast enough, loud enough, smart enough. Armed with this new information, a budding comedian can delete the bad jokes, sharpen up the better ones, and make the next gig even funnier.

Part Two

KNOCK KNOCK

CAN YOU THINK OF ANYTHING more inviting than a good knock-knock joke? Who can resist answering “who’s there?” after hearing someone say “knock knock”? You’d be hard-pressed to find someone who doesn’t love these jokes.

Knock-knocks are popular in every country where people speak English, including the United States, Canada, Great Britain, and Australia. That’s because each knock-knock joke is a pun, or a play on words, and puns are more popular in English than they are in other languages.

So, what’s the purpose of a knock-knock joke anyway? Well, that’s easy! To make you laugh, of course! A good laugh can have many truly wonderful results. Laughter is a universal language that all humans share no matter where they live or how old they are. Laughter can connect people of all ages around the world. Did you know that babies start laughing when they’re only two months old? That’s so much earlier than speaking or even crawling. Babies know funny when they see or hear it. And so do the rest of us.

Another fabulous result of a good laugh is that it really is the best medicine. Laughter is a great cure when you’re down in the dumps and just can’t shake the blues. Even the experts agree: Laughter helps to keep us healthy and happy. Science shows us that laughter increases the amount of oxygen running through our blood, makes us relax, and helps us feel less nervous during stressful times. This is no secret. People have known this for centuries. Some people even make a living just getting others to laugh!

Back in the very old days, court jesters appeared before the king and queen just to amuse them. Today, comedians, clowns, actors, and actresses all work hard to come up with funny material to get a good laugh from their audiences. Sometimes people will go out of their way to find something that will make them laugh. They watch movies, go to the theater, and turn on the television set, all in the hopes of kicking back and seeing how funny life can be!

Laughter makes people happy, and we all know that everybody likes to be around happy people. So start chuckling, giggling, guffawing, or even rolling-on-the-floor belly laughing. Gather some friends and start your own hysterical society. This is a group that gets together to tell each other jokes, riddles, and rhymes, act silly, and just plain make each other laugh. Don't worry if no one's laughing right away. Laughter is contagious. Just start tee-heeing, ho-ho-ing, and ha-ha-ing, and everyone else will soon follow.

Crawly Caterpillars

Make caterpillars out of old toilet paper rolls! Wrap the toilet paper roll in colorful construction paper (you can use tape or glue to make sure it sticks). Color squiggly designs on it. Cut up a pipe cleaner into six one-inch pieces. Glue or stick the pieces through the bottom of the caterpillar for legs. Now cut another pipe cleaner in half and bend the halves in the shape of antennae. Glue the antennae to the top of the caterpillar's head.

Find a pompon and glue it on for a nose. Draw on some eyes.
For extra big caterpillars, use old paper towel rolls instead!

FUN FACT

FUN FACT

AMAZING SNAILS

Snails are very interesting creatures, but most of the time we don't even notice them. That's because they are often underground, they move very slowly, and they don't make much noise. But did you know that many snails can lift things that weigh 10 times more than their bodies do? They also can sleep for three years at a time.

TRY THIS

Money Making

It's easy to make coin rubbings. All you need is a bunch of coins, a blank piece of white paper, and a pencil. Place a coin under the paper. Then, tilt the pencil and rub the side of the lead back and forth along the front of the coin. The imprint of the coin will appear on the paper. You can then cut out the imprints and use them as play money.

Magnet Magic

Did you know that a powerful magnet can work through paper, cardboard, and even water? Impress your friends with this trick. Put a paper clip in a glass that's mostly filled with water. Tell your friends you can get the paper clip out of the water without getting wet. Then slide the magnet along the glass until it connects with the paper clip. Move the magnet and the paper clip up the glass and above the surface of the water, until you can reach in and grab the paper clip without getting your fingers wet.

TRY THIS

In Motion

Take a piece of thin cardboard (for example, the side of a cereal box). Decorate it with a nature scene like a garden and a blue sky, or a seascape. Then make a little bird or a boat out of paper, something light that can move easily. Attach a paper clip to the bottom of your movable object. Put your object on the cardboard scene. Then get a magnet. You can move the small object around the cardboard by moving the magnet underneath the cardboard.

Taste Tests

Have you ever noticed that when you have a cold, you have less of an appetite? This is partly because we need our sense of smell to enjoy our food. With the help of a grownup, cut up a bunch of different vegetables, fruits, and cheeses with similar textures. One of you can be the taster, and the other will be the server. The server tells the taster to close his eyes and hold his nose. Then the server places a piece of food in the taster's mouth. The taster has to guess what the food is without using his sense of sight or smell. How easy do you think it will be to guess what you're eating?

YAWNING FOR AIR

Yawning when you're tired is actually a wake-up call for the brain. Your brain needs lots of oxygen, which is carried in your bloodstream to all parts of your body. When you're tired, your heart pumps more slowly. This means oxygen gets to your brain slowly. When you yawn, your brain gets the oxygen a lot faster. That makes your brain happy!

RIDDLES & BRAIN TEASERS

YOU MAY HAVE COME TO know riddles and brain teasers as a great way to get a good laugh, or maybe to challenge a friend. You may even like to challenge yourself with these riddles. But did you know that thousands of years ago, people just like you were interested in a good riddle or puzzle, too?

Some were interested for different reasons than others, depending on their needs. For instance, one of the first uses for a riddle was to “secretly” carry a message from one person to another — a quiz of sorts that only you knew the answer to, and hopefully the person on the other end would be smart enough to solve or figure out. Unfortunately, not everyone was. For example, one of the most famous riddles of all time was that of Samson from the Bible. As a challenge, Samson tried to trick the Philistines with a riddle about honey. Frustrated and angry, the people decided to solve the riddle of Samson's strength instead. When they discovered the answer, they removed his hair, took away his strength, and defeated him.

Many of the words or expressions in our world are forms of these earlier riddles and brain teasers. Take your name, for example. Did you know that your name has a hidden meaning? The stories behind both our first and last names are usually more than meet the eye. Entire books have been written to explain the original meanings behind any first name. Last names are usually easier to guess, as people used to “sneak” what they did for a living into their last name, such as Smith (for blacksmith or goldsmith) and Wagoner. Or, they would use their father's name and then add the word “son” on the end, as in Johnson and Peterson. And middle names? Well, they hid your family lineage by using your mother's maiden name for your middle name.

Puzzling maybe, but there's more: Do you know which famous author secretly fooled a great number of readers by using his last name spelled backward? Actually, his last name was Geisel, and when he wrote it backward, it became Lesieg ... but he became famous through his middle name. Do you know what it was? Suess! Authors aren't the only tricksters. Artists and actors, musicians and entertainers also like to challenge us to try to figure out the sometimes-tough riddle of who they are. Or better yet, who they were.

Almost everyone loves a good mystery or puzzle, and puzzles are a fun way of exercising your brain and testing your friends' skills as well. Best of all, riddles and brain teasers are there to be enjoyed. So, prepare to be tricked, tested, riddled, and teased until you can't take any more — and have fun!

TIME FOR SCHOOL

Words to Know

Rhyme — No Reason

Do you know how many letters in the alphabet rhyme with the letter B? Eight — C, D, E, G, P, T, V, and Z. Now try making a list of words for your family or friends to try to find a rhyme for. If you want to try an experiment on them, give them 2 sets of lists to try to memorize. One set has 8 words that rhyme, while the other has 8 that do not. Which list will be easier for them to remember?

Bad Band

Begin by writing as many answers as you can under the clues. Then, enter each letter into its numbered box in the answer grid (one has been done for you). Continue working back and forth between the clues and the grid. When you are finished, you will have the answer to the following riddle:

TRY THIS

Optical Illusions

When your brain and eyes work together, sometimes they can play tricks on you. Some of these tricks are known as optical illusions. To try one optical illusion test, take 2 empty paper towel tubes and hold the end of each one up to your eyes. Keeping them straight, look through the tubes. Now, while you are still looking through them, move the ends that are farthest from your eyes together until they touch. What do you see?

What's am I?

It may “shock” you to know what I discovered — and some say I had an “electric” personality. To this day, I’m sometimes called one of the Founding Fathers, and my portrait appears on one of those green bills you use to pay for things. Who am I?

Benjamin Franklin

When the Smith family decided to move, everyone pitched in, including Sybil and her sister. If the girls can carry 2 large objects or 6 small ones each time, how many trips will it take to move 10 large objects and 16 small ones?

8 trips

If it takes 12 minutes for the Gowen family to wait for a ride on the roller coaster, and 5 minutes for everyone to get off it, how many minutes are spent screaming?

7 minutes

Jack has a lot of dishes to do. He has enough dishes to fill 4 sinks, and it takes him 10 minutes to wash one sinkful, 5 minutes to rinse it, and 5 minutes to dry. How much time would it save him if he waited and rinsed all the dishes at the end (10 minutes total), and let them all air dry?

It would save him 30 minutes

When Marty's dad asked him if he had been taking out the trash like he was supposed to, he answered, "Yes, I look at the moon every night I go out." Of course his father knew this was a lie. Why?

The moon is not visible every night
